PRINCIPLES

- Teachers have a duty to act if they believe that their duty of care needs to be fulfilled. It must be accepted that in some circumstances it is not the safer option to do nothing or take very limited action.
- Teachers should not act if their own personal safety is at risk
- As a general rule teachers should avoid using reasonable force, touching or holding pupils.

1. WHAT IS REASONABLE FORCE?

- a) The term 'reasonable force' covers the broad range of actions used by most teachers at some point in their career that involves a degree of physical contact with pupils.
- b) Force is usually used either to control or restrain. This can range from guiding a pupil to safety by the arm through to more extreme circumstances such as breaking up a fight or where a student needs to be restrained to prevent violence or injury.
- c) 'Reasonable in the circumstances' means using no more force than is needed.
- d) As mentioned above, schools generally use force to control pupils and to restrain them. Control means either passive physical contact, such as standing between pupils or blocking a pupil's path, or active physical contact such as leading a pupil by the arm out of a classroom.
- e) Restraint means to hold back physically or to bring a pupil under control. It is typically used in more extreme circumstances, for example when two pupils are fighting and refuse to separate without physical intervention.
- f) School staff should always try to avoid acting in a way that might cause injury, but in extreme cases it may not always be possible to avoid injuring the pupil.

2. THE USE OF REASONABLE FORCE?

- a) Reasonable force should only be used in circumstances where there are good grounds for believing that the pupil is placing him/herself or other people in immediate danger or where there is a likelihood of significant damage to property. Reasonable force should be used as a last resort to secure compliance with staff instructions; other methods should always be considered first.

3. WHO CAN USE REASONABLE FORCE?

- a) All members of school staff have a legal power to use reasonable force².
- b) This power applies to any member of staff at the school. It can also apply to people whom the Headteacher has temporarily put in charge of pupils such as unpaid volunteers or parents accompanying students on a school organised visit.

4. WHEN CAN REASONABLE FORCE BE USED?

- a) Reasonable force can be used to prevent pupils from hurting themselves or others, from damaging property or from causing disorder.
- b) In a school, force is used for two main purposes – to control pupils or to restrain them.
- c) The decision on whether or not to physically intervene is down to the professional judgement of the member concerned and should always depend on the individual circumstances.
- d) The following list is not exhaustive but provides some examples of situations where reasonable force can and cannot be used.

²(Section 93, Education & Inspections Act 2006).

Schools can use reasonable force to:

- remove disruptive students from the classroom where they have refused to follow an instruction to do so;
- prevent a pupil behaving in a way that disrupts a school event or a school trip or visit;
- prevent a pupil leaving the classroom where allowing the pupil to leave would risk their safety or lead to behaviour that disrupts the behaviour of others;
- prevent a pupil from attacking a member of staff or another pupil, or to stop a fight on the playground; and
- restrain a pupil at risk of harming themselves through physical outbursts.

Schools cannot:

- use force as a punishment – it is always unlawful to use force as a punishment.

5. POWER TO SEARCH PUPILS WITHOUT CONSENT

a) In addition to the general power to use reasonable force described above, Headteachers and authorised staff can use such force as is reasonable given the circumstances to conduct a search for the following “prohibited items”³.

- knives and weapons
- alcohol
- illegal drugs
- stolen items
- tobacco and cigarette papers
- fireworks
- pornographic images
- any article that has been or is likely to be used to commit an offence, cause personal injury or damage to property

Force cannot be used to search for items banned under the school rules.

Separate guidance is available on the power to search without consent – see the Associated Resources section for a link to this document.

6. COMMUNICATING THE SCHOOL’S APPROACH TO THE USE OF FORCE

- Every school is required by law to have a behaviour policy and to make this policy known to staff, parents and pupils. The governing body should notify the Headteacher that it expects the school behaviour policy to include the power to use reasonable force.
- There is no legal requirement to have a policy on the use of force but it is good practice to set out, in the behaviour policy, the circumstances in which force might be used. For example, it could say that teachers will physically separate pupils found fighting or that if a pupil refuses to leave a room when instructed to do so, they will be physically removed.
- Any policy on the use of reasonable force should acknowledge their legal duty to make reasonable adjustments for disabled children and children with special educational needs (SEN).
- Schools do not require parental consent to use force on a student.
- Schools should not have a ‘no contact’ policy. There is a real risk that such a policy might place a member of staff in breach of their duty of care towards a pupil, or prevent them taking action needed to prevent a pupil causing harm.
- By taking steps to ensure that staff, pupils and parents are clear about when force might be used, the school will reduce the likelihood of complaints being made when force has been used properly.

³ (Section 550ZB(5) of the Education Act 1996

7. USING FORCE

A panel of experts⁴ identified that certain restraint techniques an unacceptable risk when used on children and young people. The techniques in question are:

- the 'seated double embrace' which involves two members of staff forcing a person into a sitting position and leaning them forward, while a third monitors breathing;
- the 'double basket-hold' which involves holding a person's arms across their chest; and
- the 'nose distraction technique' which involves a sharp upward jab under the nose

8. STAFF TRAINING

- a) Schools need to take their own decisions about staff training. The Headteacher should consider whether members of staff require any additional training to enable them to carry out their responsibilities and should consider the needs of the pupils when doing so.
- b) Some local authorities provide advice and guidance to help schools to develop an appropriate training programme.

9. TELLING PARENTS WHEN FORCE HAS BEEN USED ON THEIR CHILD

- a) It is good practice for schools to speak to parents about serious incidents involving the use of force and to consider how best to record such serious incidents. It is up to schools to decide whether it is appropriate to report the use of force to parents⁵.
- b) In deciding what is a serious incident, teachers should use their professional judgement and consider the:
 - pupil's behaviour and level of risk presented at the time of the incident;
 - degree of force used;
 - effect on the pupil or member of staff; and
 - the child's age

10. WHAT HAPPENS IF A PUPIL COMPLAINS WHEN FORCE IS USED ON THEM?

- a) All complaints about the use of force should be thoroughly, speedily and appropriately investigated.
- b) Where a member of staff has acted within the law – that is, they have used reasonable force in order to prevent injury, damage to property or disorder – this will provide a defence to any criminal prosecution or other civil or public law action.
- c) When a complaint is made the onus is on the person making the complaint to prove that his/her allegations are true – it is not for the member of staff to show that he/she has acted reasonably.
- d) Suspension must not be an automatic response when a member of staff has been accused of using excessive force. Schools should refer to the "Dealing with Allegations of Abuse against Teachers and Other Staff" guidance (see Associated Resources section below) where an allegation of using excessive force is made against a teacher. This guidance makes clear that a person must not be suspended automatically, or without careful thought.
- e) Schools must consider carefully whether the circumstances of the case warrant a person being suspended until the allegation is resolved or whether alternative arrangements are more appropriate.
- f) If a decision is taken to suspend a teacher, the school should ensure that the teacher has access to a named contact who can provide support.
- g) Governing bodies should always consider whether a teacher has acted within the law when reaching a decision on whether or not to take disciplinary action against the teacher.
- h) As employers, schools and local authorities have a duty of care towards their employees. It is important that schools provide appropriate pastoral care to any member of staff who is subject to a formal allegation following a use of force incident.

⁵ References to parent or parents are to fathers as well as mothers, unless otherwise stated.

11. WHAT ABOUT OTHER PHYSICAL CONTACT WITH PUPILS?

- a) It is not illegal to touch a pupil. There are occasions when physical contact, other than reasonable force, with a pupil is proper and necessary.
- b) Examples of where touching a pupil might be proper or necessary;
 - holding the hand of the child at the front/back of the line when going to assembly or when walking together around the school;
 - when comforting a distressed pupil;
 - when a pupil is being congratulated or praised;
 - to demonstrate how to use a musical instrument;
 - to demonstrate exercises or techniques during PE lessons or sports coaching; and
 - to give first aid.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

I'm worried that if I use force a pupil or parent could make a complaint against me.

Am I protected?

Yes, if you have acted lawfully. If the force used is reasonable all staff will have a robust defence against any accusations.

How do I know whether using a physical intervention is 'reasonable'?

The decision on whether to physically intervene is down to the professional judgement of the teacher concerned. Whether the force used is reasonable will always depend on the particular circumstances of the case. The use of force is reasonable if it is proportionate to the consequences it is intended to prevent. This means the degree of force used should be no more than is needed to achieve the desired result. School staff should expect the full backing of their senior leadership team when they have used force.

What about school trips?

The power may be used where the member of staff is lawfully in charge of the pupils, and this includes while on school trips.

Can force be used on pupils with SEN or disabilities?

Yes, but the judgement on whether to use force should not only depend on the circumstances of the case but also on information and understanding of the needs of the pupil concerned.

I'm a female teacher with a Year 10 class – there's no way I'd want to restrain or try to control my pupils. Am I expected to do so?

There is a power, not a duty, to use force so members of staff have discretion whether or not to use it. However, teachers and other school staff have a duty of care towards their pupils and it might be argued that failing to take action (including a failure to use reasonable force) may in some circumstances breach that duty.

Are there any circumstances in which a teacher can use physical force to punish a pupil?

No. It is always unlawful to use force as a punishment. This is because it would fall within the definition of corporal punishment, which is illegal.
